

Cynthia Scheib has been a certified psychiatric and substance abuse nurse for over 30 years, working with adults, adolescents, and children in various psychiatric settings. In 2004, she joined the staff at Tripler Army Medical Center providing care to military families until 2008 when she moved to Europe and became a consultant for the Army Substance Abuse Program at Lundstahl Army Medical Center in Germany. She returned to TAMC in 2010 and has served as a nurse case manager in many behavioral health clinics, currently serving as the NCM in the Pacific Hub Tele-Behavioral Health Clinic where it is her privilege to work with Active Duty Service Members, their Families and Retirees and their Families to get their psychological and medical needs met in our large medical system. She aims to “be the reason that someone feels welcomed, seen, heard, valued, loved and supported.”
